Acknowledgements

First of all, I would like to extend my profound gratitude to my supervisor Professor Steve Kulich for his prudent guidance and generous help. The three classes he taught provided me with good foundation for paper writing, especially cross-cultural research methodologies class. In the process of thesis development, he gave insights from time to time whenever my thoughts were blocked. In particular, he spent quite a lot of time helping me revise the questionnaire. His valuable suggestions and patient guidance made the completion of the thesis possible. In addition, his personal library enabled me to get access to plenty of reference books that I needed. In short, he made a precious contribution to the development of my ideas and the logical organization of them.
